

Privacy Statement

Manlift respects your right to privacy. Your details will not be handed on to third parties. With this privacy declaration we would like to inform you about our working procedure and the way that we intend to use your details.

Our Privacy Policy in short:

- We will not sell your personal information that you give to us, including your email, and will only use it for internal purposes.
- We place various cookies on your browser to understand how you're using the Manlift Website and how we can then provide you with solutions that align with your needs. Some of the cookies are for third parties that help us advertise and measure the impact of our website, which allows us to spend our money thoughtfully

Surfing

For surfing on our website we do not ask you to provide any personal details. Every time you visit our website we do monitor your click behavior. That means that the pages that you visit, the destinations you request and the page through which you exit our website will be registered. We do this solely to measure interest for certain aspects of our website and in order to better adjust our offers to your wishes. These details are used exclusively for our own research.

Newsletter

If you have signed up for the Manlift Newsletter we will regularly inform you via email about innovations, novelties, products and market trends. Do you wish to cancel your newsletter registration? Then you can easily sign out yourself on our website.

Links

Manlift contains links to external websites. Manlift cannot be held responsible for the privacy of other websites.

How to contact us

Should you have other questions or concerns about our privacy policies and practices, please contact Manlift. You can send an e-mail to info@manliftgroup.com.

